The shipments of guano and other fertilizers over the South Carolina railroad for the six months ending April 1, were 33,687 tons, against 30,337 tons in 1875; 28,779 tons in 1874; 29,985 tons in 1873; 31,291 tons in 1872; 15,824 tons in 1871 and 30,648 tons in 1870.

Congress has been in session four months, and neither house has passed a single important appropriation bill, so it is difficult to see what an adjournment can be effected before August. The Belknap trial will be apt to take up three or four weeks of the senate's time, and an early adjournment is exceedingly improbable.

The vote on Mr. Dana's confirmation was 17 years and 33 days, the democrats voting almost solidly in the negative. During the discussion of the case the fact was developed that the president had for some days past been deafened of withdrawing the nomination. He should consult Butler before making another appointment from Massachusetts.

LITTLE RHODEY held an election on Wednesday, and strange to say in this radical pocket borough there was no election by the people. This however was due to the running of three tickets. The republican candidate for governor was Henry Lippitt, the present incumbent; the prohibition candidate Albert C. Howard, and the democratic candidate was Wm. B. Beach.

BELKNAP's counsel will probably be Montgomery Blair, ex Senator Carpenter, Judge Black and Judge Johnson. They will urge the jurisdictional question, and if the case is not thrown out of court on that question, it is thought that the accused may abandon it altogether. The senate's punitive power is limited to debarring him from holding office, and he is already practically debarred. Any further punishment must come through the criminal courts.

THE CHATTANOOGA TIMES is our authority for the statement that a great many of the fruit trees which put out blossoms in February and the first part of March have concluded to try again, and are now showing brand new foliage and flowers. This is particularly the case with peach trees that bloomed in February. The Times adds that a careful examination proves the new blossoms and cap of fruit.

The following parts have been assigned to the managers in the impeachment trial of Belknap: before the senate: On rules, Representatives Lord, Lynde, Jenks and Hoar; on pleadings, Representatives Knott, McMahon and Jenks; on jurisdiction of the senate's; Representatives Lord, Knott and Hoar; the opening will be by Representative Lynde; on preparation for trial of fact and examination of witnesses, Representatives McMahon, Lynde and Jenks; on questions of law on trial of fact, Representatives Lynde, Jenks and McMahon; on the final submission, Representatives Lord, Knott and Jenks. Each manager is to sum up the case if permitted, or each may hand in and have printed with the proceedings his argument.

THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION.

The present formidable movement for the overthrow of the regular government of our sister republic began in the large and important state of Michoacan over a year ago. It assumed the form of a religious rebellion—a reaction from the policy of the government in divorcing church and state, and the war cry of the Michoacans was up to a recent variety, "Viva la religion!" About three months ago Gen. Escobedo attempted to crush the rebellion in the state, but he only partially succeeded, and the revolution is now central.

The most in Michoacan doubtless led to the revolutionary programs that was proclaimed January 17, in Tuxope, and it ran in the mountains of Oaxaca, although the Tuxope plan there is nothing of a religious nature. This plan proclaims the constitution of 1857, with all its amendments—many of which are directed against the church establishment, repudiates President Lero, his officials, and the present congress; provides for the organization of a provisional government by the votes of a majority of the governors of the states, and names General Porfirio Diaz as the general-in-chief of "the regenerating army." Other "plans" have been promulgated by Rocha and other revolutionaries, but all or nearly all have given their adherence to the Tuxope plan, which is now the basis of the entire revolution.

The head and front of the new movement is General Diaz, the hero of the war against the empire. He it was, says a recent sketch, who, at the head of 84,000 well-armed liberals, besieged and captured the City of Mexico, which, being garrisoned by a strong force of Austrians, Belgians and Imperialists Mexicans, held out even after the fall of Queretaro. General Diaz was a candidate for the presidency against Juarez in 1867, and again against Juarez and Lerdo in 1871. This time he received a plurality of the popular vote, but gained decisively in favor of Juarez, he appealed to arms, and was at the head of a revolution at the time of the death of the great Indian president in July, 1872. Lerdo, as chief justice of the supreme court, succeeded to the presidency ad interim, is used a general armada, and convoked congress. The revolutionists laid down their arms at once, and congress ordered a presidential election. General Diaz was not a candidate, and Lerdo walked over the cause.

Another presidential election is in progress, and General Diaz, who has retained his popularity to a great extent, is not willing to stake his fortunes on the chances and wiles of a political canvass. His distrustful President Lerdo, who is an able politician of the modern American school. He would be a fitting leader for the radical party of this country, for he knows how to carry congressional elections by federal patronage. He has still a strong support, especially amongst the landed proprietors and commercial men who prefer any constitutional government to one based on bayonets, which has its record to make. The friends of the government claim that President Lerdo really retains the confidence of all except those who prefer a revolution to the ordinary pursue of life.

This claim of the government is correct, the progress of the revolution shows that the chronic revolutionaries are a strong element in Mexico. From the mountain towns of Oaxaca, it has spread to Sonora, Durango, Zacatecas, Jalisco, Aguascalientes, Guanajuato, Michoacan, Mexico, Puebla and Tlaxcala. In four of these states, Oaxaca, Michoacan—which has accepted the Tuxope plan—Puebla and Jalisco, the revolutionists have met and are ready to meet the federal troops in the open field. In the other states they are scattered about in small bands. Within the last ten days the revolution has gained a strong foothold in the border states, resulting last Sunday in the fall of Maamoros, after a surging desertion of the federal troops stationed in that frontier city. Gen. Diaz's headquarters are now in the recently captured town.

The result is difficult to forecast. The House bill for r-storing to the pension list the veterans of the war of 1812 does not allow them any arrears of pay, but it gives the wives of those who have died since the war arrears from May 1, 1865.

MERRIS TURNBULL, brother of Baltimore, will soon publish Col. Marshall's Life of General Lee. They have also in preparation the life of Alexander H. Stephens & Col R. M. Johnson and Mr. William Hand Browne, late editor of the Southern magazine.

SALE SPECTACLE.

An infant burned to a crisp.

A heart-rending scene was witnessed yesterday on Castleberry's hill. Mrs. Harry Clinton left her house about ten o'clock, leaving her boy child, some eighteen months old, crawling on the floor. As she passed through the hall, she stopped the child crawled into the fire, setting fire to its clothes, and then crawled to the door, where he lay on the floor, and then crawled to the round of one step and the step of its feet resting against the side of the stairs. The boy then crawled up the stairs and instep the child's body was burnt to a crisp and black. Strange enough, the child did not cry out, but uttered a groan. It lived a mere fifteen minutes after it was discovered. A doctor was called, but no life can be given to any good.

Police Pickings.

The police arrested Laura Mayson, colored, suspicion of larceny, but not warranting her release—the evidence not warranting her release.

James Harper, colored, was arrested on suspicion he had attempted to rape a white woman.

A man supposed to be from South Carolina was arrested in Marietta, but turned out to be the wrong man. He was seized on the charge of being a thief. He was taken to the right place. He is jail awaiting the necessary papers from South Carolina.

Good Appoint.

That excellent and well known railroad man, Col. John C. Atkinson, late of the Seaboard, and now of the Central, has been appointed general southern agent of the Seaboard, and Dalton, Ga.—the old "Blue Mountain" road. He will be down daily to train and thron h' sleepin coaches and will be of great service. Success to him and his famous route!

"You can!" What else yer got fer do but buy?" "I can't!"—but the poor nigger who was painted dark, say "I can't."
